Objectives

- Learn what direct and indirect objects are
- Differentiate between direct objects and indirect objects
- Use direct and indirect objects correctly

Sentence structure

A subject

- Is a noun, noun phrase or pronoun that refers to a person, place, animal or thing.
- It is usually the agent of the sentence.
- The agent is the one doing the verb, the one that performs the action.
- For example: My mother ran to the store to get some last-minute groceries.

A transitive verb

- Is a verb that requires an object.
- There are verbs like “to walk”, “to sleep”, “to dance” that deliver a complete meaning on their own; these are called intransitive verbs.
 - ✓ “I danced.”
- Transitive verbs, however, need more information to complete their meaning.
 - ✓ For example: “I found...?”
 - ✓ The verb “to find” is a transitive verb because, when using that verb, it requires you to say what was found; otherwise, the idea is incomplete.

What is an object?

- An object is a noun, a noun phrase or a pronoun that refers to a person, place or thing.
- It is the recipient of the action of a transitive verb.
- Transitive verbs allow for two types of objects: direct objects and indirect objects.

A direct object (DO)

- Is a noun or noun phrase that identifies who or what receives the action of a transitive verb.
- Answers the question “Whom? (formal)/Who? (informal)”
 - ✓ I saw Martha (DO).
 - ✓ Whom did you see? Martha (DO)
 - ✓ Martha is the direct object of the verb “to see”.
- Can also be the product of the action in a question that starts with “What?”.
 - ✓ He wrote a letter (DO).
 - ✓ What did he write? A letter (DO)
 - ✓ A letter is the direct object of the verb “to write”.

Indirect Object (IO)

- Is a noun or a noun phrase that refers to the person or thing that receives the result of a transitive verb.
- If the direct object is the product of the action, the indirect object is the recipient of that product.
- Answers the questions “To whom? For whom?” and “To what? For what?”
 - ✓ He wrote Martha (IO) a letter.
 - ✓ To whom did he write a letter? (Formal)
 - ✓ Who did he write a letter to? (Informal)
 - ✓ Martha is the indirect object of the verb “to write”.

Position

- Both objects come after the verb.
- The indirect object always needs a direct object with it. The indirect object usually comes before the direct object.
 - ✓ She gave her mom a birthday card.
- The indirect object can also be used with a preposition (“to” or “for”), in which case the indirect object must come after the direct object.
 - ✓ (Incorrect) I wrote to my sister a letter.
 - ✓ (Correct) I wrote a letter to my sister.
 - ✓ (Correct) I wrote my sister a letter.

Position

- Do not place a word in between a verb and its direct object, unless it is an indirect object.
 - ✓ (Incorrect) I wrote yesterday a letter to my sister.
 - ✓ (Correct) I wrote a letter to my sister yesterday.
 - ✓ (Correct) Yesterday, I wrote my sister a letter.

Subject Pronouns

- Personal pronouns refer back to people and things that have already been identified.
- They have different subject and object forms, except for you (sing. or plural) and it. you and it stay the same.
- They can act as the subject of a clause. We use them before a verb to show who is performing the action.

Grammatical Person	Singular	Plural
1st person	I	We
2nd person	You	You
3rd person	He, she, it	They

Object Pronouns (OP)

- Are used to replace the direct object and/or the indirect object in a sentence.
- Personal object pronouns are used after the verb or after a preposition.

Grammatical Person	Singular	Plural
1st person	Me	Us
2nd person	You	You
3rd person	Him, her, it	Them

- ✓ Max gave me (object pronoun) roses for my birthday.
- ✓ They sent us (object pronoun) an invitation for the wedding.
- ✓ The contract? I sent it (object pronoun) to you (object pronoun) via email.

Subject Pronouns (SP) and Object Pronouns (OP)

- I, me

- I and me refer to the speaker or writer. I is the subject form and me is the object form.
- I (SP) like you. Do you like me (OP)?

- You

- You refers to the listener or reader. It is both the subject and the object form. You can refer to one person or more than one person.
- The context let us know if it's singular or plural.
- You (SP) overslept. I told you (OP) to go to sleep early.

Subject Pronouns (SP) and Object Pronouns (OP)

- He, him

- Singular third person masculine pronouns. He is the subject form and him is the object form.
- He (SP) bought roses for his wife. She bought cologne for him (OP).

- She, her

- Singular third person feminine pronouns. She is the subject form and her is the object form.
- She (SP) wanted chocolates. He bought her (OP) chocolates.

Subject Pronouns (SP) and Object Pronouns (OP)

- It

- Refers to lifeless things, animals, situations, ideas or abstract entities.
- As a subject, it can be used as an empty pronoun to place in the subject position when there is no other subject, particularly when talking about weather or time.
- It is also an object
 - It (SP) is right by the corner. You will see it (OP) as soon as you go in.

Subject Pronouns (SP) and Object Pronouns (OP)

- We, us

- We and us refer to different groups of people, but always including the speaker. We is the subject form and us is the object form.
- We (SP) just got here. Did they call us (OP)?

- They, them

- They and them refer to specific groups of people, things and animals.
- They is the subject form and them is the object form.
- They (SP) are too expensive. I'm not buying them (OP).
