

Annotated Bibliography

(1) London, Herbert. "Five Myths of the Television Age." Television Quarterly, vol. 10, no. 1, Mar. 1982, pp. 81-89.

(2) Herbert London, the Dean of Journalism at New York University and author of several books and articles, explains how television contradicts five commonly believed ideas. (3) He uses specific examples of events seen on television, such as the assassination of John Kennedy, to illustrate his points. His examples have been selected to contradict such truisms as: "seeing is believing"; "a picture is worth a thousand words"; and "satisfaction is its own reward." London uses logical arguments to support his ideas which are his personal opinion. He does not refer to any previous works on the topic. London's style and vocabulary would make the article of interest to any reader. The article clearly illustrates London's points, but does not explore their implications leaving the reader with many unanswered questions.

(1) Follow MLA format rules for the reference. after your first line, apply hanging indentation.

(3) Summarize the relevant information for your research. Include arguments and be evaluative.

Relevant Information

The selection of information will depend on your instructor's rules. Traditional MLA style annotations are more evaluative. Things to keep in mind:

- Main arguments.
- The source's strengths & weaknesses.
- An evaluation of the research methodology and results.
- Your personal conclusions about the source.

ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY MLA STYLE

(2) Provide an introduction that includes information on the author(s) and provide insight of the source's topic.

Format Rules

- Follow the format established in the rest of your paper (inch margin, Last name & page number) .
- Font and size: Time New Roman 12pt.
- It should be double-spaced.
- Put Annotated Bibliography centered.
- Use a hanging indentation after the first line that follows your annotations. (Verify with your instructor; some MLA users do not apply this rule for the annotation section).
